

Technical Medical EMS and Reno Family Medical Group Announce Partnership to Bring In-Home Care to Patients

[Reno, NV] - Technical Medical EMS, a leading private paramedic and ambulance service, and Reno Family Medical Group, a concierge primary care practice, are proud to announce their new partnership. Together, they will be offering in-home care to busy or home-bound patients who need regular access to medical professionals.

This partnership is an exciting opportunity for both companies to expand their services and bring high-quality healthcare to patients who may have difficulty accessing it. Technical Medical EMS brings their expertise in out-of-hospital medical care to the partnership, while Reno Family Medical Group contributes their experience in primary care.

The in-home care services provided by the partnership will include regular check-ups, preventative care, and treatment for acute illnesses or injuries. This will allow patients to receive medical care in the comfort of their own homes, without the need for transportation to a medical facility.

"Partnering with Reno Family Medical Group allows us to provide a new level of care to our patients," said Aaron Abbott, CEO of Technical Medical EMS. "We understand the importance of access to healthcare, and this partnership allows us to bring medical professionals directly to those who need it most."

Nurse Practitioner Sarah DeLacey, founder of Reno Family Medical Group, echoed these sentiments: "We are excited to be working with Technical Medical EMS to offer a more comprehensive in-home care experience for our patients. This partnership will allow us to provide a higher level of care and convenience for those who need it."

The in-home care services will be available to patients in the Reno/Sparks/Carson City area, with plans to expand to other regions in the future.
